TOTAL COMPENSATION

Definitions

Salary Range – indicates the minimum and maximum salary associated with a full time union-exempt position.

Pay Grade – each salary range is assigned a number from 1 to 9, identified as a pay grade. Pay grades were established with the assistance of a compensation consultant and were based on comparable external market data, internal equity, ability to pay, other comparable University structures and the total compensation package at NSCAD.

Salary Philosophy

NSCAD University offers a total compensation package, including competitive salaries, vacation time, pension contributions, balanced work/life environment, and health benefits which are attractive to new and existing employees.

Salary ranges were developed with the aid of an external consulting firm by conducting a salary survey and comparing position descriptions to other similar positions in similar sized organizations and Universities. This included six universities in Atlantic Canada, along with a large data base of salaries from organizations maintained by the consultant. In developing the pay grade and salary ranges the consultant used current position descriptions and considered the scope of the job, reporting and organizational structure, and size and location of the organization. Final construction of the pay grades and salary ranges were made considering a number of factors including; internal equity, external market data, ability to pay, and other benefits provided as part of the total compensation package.

Pay Grades

Each position has been assigned a pay grade which establishes a minimum and maximum full time salary range. NSCAD is committed to ensuring all employees be paid a salary that is not less the minimum salary of their assigned pay grade. Periodically market reviews will be conducted to ensure the pay grade for the position remain relevant and competitive. A positions' pay grade may be changed if the market data indicates the range has fallen below current market values for the position.

Salary ranges may be adjusted by inflation in order to keep the range within current market values. Changes in salary ranges may not necessarily result in a increase of a union exempt employee's salary. However, should the inflation adjustment increase the salary range to a level outside of the employee's current salary, a salary increase will be provided to bring the salary up to the current minimum level of the salary range for respective position's pay grade.

Salary Ranges

Reclassification

An existing position may be reclassified to a higher or lower pay grade if significant changes in the job content are assigned or removed. The established pay grade may be increased or decreased upon approval of an updated and finalized position description and market analysis.

Should a position be reclassified downwards the employee's present salary will be red circled until it is within the new pay grade salary range. It will be adjusted to the maximum at that time.

If the pay grade is increased, the person's salary may be increased to minimum salary for the newly established pay grade.

If the employee's salary is within the range of the new pay grade, there will be no immediate salary increase. Future increases will be provided as per the union exempt salary increase process. (see the next section)

Should a new position be established, the pay grade will be determined based on the finalized position description and market assessments. If there is no comparable job, the position will be given a provisional pay grade, and a market assessment will be conducted within twelve months to ensure the position has been assessed to the appropriate pay grade.

Salary Increases

Increases in salary may be distributed as an equal percentage to all union exempt employees, or they may be distributed within a range of percentages that take into consideration current market, placement in the employee's salary range, university budgets and internal equity. Final decisions on salary increases are approved by the President.

Market Differentials

A market differential is a temporary salary increase or stipend which is provided due to external market pressures above the assessed pay grade to retain or attract people to a particular position.

The application of market differentials will only be used in exceptional circumstances:

1. Where the position exists in a low supply/high demand labour market. This can be characterized by high turnover in a particular union exempt position accompanied by the inability to recruit qualified staff that are deemed critical to the operation of the department/university; and
2. A higher salary is deemed essential to recruit an employee (or employee group) that serves a critical function that cannot be achieved by any other possible means.

All market differentials will be approved by the senior management team and will not impact the pay grade and salary range for the position. The differential will be reviewed annually and could be increased, decreased, unchanged or eliminated. An employee's salary may exceed the maximum of their salary range due to a market differential.

Overload Pay or Time off in Lieu

A one-time payment may be granted in recognition of successful completion of a significant special onetime project accomplished outside of an employee's normal responsibilities or workload*. Assignments of this nature will typically encompass a period of several weeks and payment may range from 3% to 5% of annual base salary or may include time off in lieu. All exceptional overload or time off in lieu payments must be identified and approved by the Senior Management team in advance. Should a one-time payment be made in recognition of the additional work, the employee will not be eligible for any other form of compensation or time off in lieu related to this special project.

\ Normal workload for Directors and Managers ranges from 35-45 hours per week depending on the seniority of the position. Directors and VPs will regularly be required to work over and above 35 hours per week to carry out their job responsibilities. The “overload pay or time off in lieu” is designed to reward and recognize individuals who have gone above and beyond their regular duties and worked an extensive period of excessive overtime (nights and weekends) over a substantial period of time.*

Temporary Assignment Allowance

Employees who have been appointed by the Board of Governors, the President, or a Vice President to an acting appointment at a higher level as a Director or Vice President for a continuous period exceeding eight weeks’ duration may be eligible to receive a temporary assignment allowance for the period.

The temporary assignment allowance shall be the difference between the professional employee’s current salary and the minimum salary point of the higher level position. If the professional employee is not performing the full range of the duties of the higher level position, he/she shall be paid a pro rata amount of the difference between the employee’s substantive salary and the minimum salary point of the higher level position. The allowance will vary between 5% to 10% of the employee’s total base salary based on the scope of the additional duties. In no case will the temporary assignment allowance exceed 10% of the current total base salary.

Overtime

Normal working hours range between 35 and 40 hours per week depending on the specific role and/or the functional area. It is recognized that from time to time additional hours to the norm may be required to fulfill the requirements of a position. These hours should be requested in advance by a supervisor, except in the case of an emergency.

Overtime is defined as all work performed outside the Employee’s regularly scheduled working hours, and that is authorized in advance by the Employer.

You are expected to perform your position competently, efficiently and to the best of your ability. Managerial positions are expected from time to time to carry out duties outside of normal business hours and days. Salaries and benefits take into account these expectations. As such, employees who are in management roles will not be compensated directly for overtime worked:

Managerial positions may request leave with pay in recognition of excessive hours of work or time off in lieu of overtime pay.

Non Managerial Employees are entitled to overtime compensation as follows:

- Overtime hours must be required as an operational necessity and be pre authorized by the Supervisor.
- Periods of less than thirty (30) minutes in a regular work day are not entitled to overtime compensation.

- Unless required as an operational requirement and pre-approved by the supervisor, work performed during lunch hours is not considered to be work performed in excess of the regular work day and will not be compensated as overtime.
- Overtime will be compensated at 1 ½ times the current salary.

The ability to fund requests will be dependent upon the fiscal realities at the University.

Employees must submit their request by January 31st for the following fiscal year outlining the dates and place of the conference or professional development opportunity; a summary description of the professional development opportunity, the expected learning outcome; and the estimated costs including itemized detail of workshop fees, travel expenses, meals and accommodations.

Approved professional development will not exceed the following thresholds:

Director level	up to $1,800
Manager level	up to $1,200
Administrative	up to $750

These thresholds are not guarantees of funding nor will all requests for professional development be approved. Requests for professional development will be assessed and prioritized annually based on the University budget, needs of the University based on strategic plans, past performance of the employee including meeting of departmental goals, applicability of the request, past allocation of professional development funding, and internal equity.

For those funding requests that are approved, the amounts will be allocated within the departmental operating budgets. Employees cannot use departmental operating budgets to fund conference and workshop costs (registration fees, travel and accommodations) over and above the amount specifically allocated to them for professional development.

If you must smoke you are required to smoke outdoors and not within 4 metres of windows, air intake vents and entrances to places of employment.
