Gerry is an urban planner who has worked and lived around the globe for the past 40 years.

He's been honoured with various awards, including the World Leadership Award in Town Planning and Urban Governance for his work in the Middle East and the Nova Scotia Human Rights Award for his accessibility advocacy.

In retirement his advocacy helped the Province of Nova Scotia to adopt an Accessibility Act. He was subsequently appointed the first Executive Director for Accessibility in Nova Scotia and is now in charge of implementing the Act.
